THE TRAMPS.

A woman and man; she, pallid and wan,
And with sad eyes, hollow and fasting;
His glassy and marred by the drunkards reward.
Ther st'll about him are; casting.
With the death-eager look of that terrible thirsts
That has borne him and torn him down from the first.

As they stand in their shame by the bright kitchen flame, with despair in each shivering motion,
What a story I read of man's madness and greed,
And of women's angelic devotion—
Of the wonderful love of two ill-mated lives,
Which still, in its storm-trampled embers survives.

Does her memory stretch from that poor bloated wretch
Far back into days that were golden,
When his love first breathed, seemed a treasure bequeathed,
For which she was ever beholden?
Surrounds him still the illusion of yore
Through which women behold the men they adore?

Ay! there as they stand, she touches his hand—
The hand of the sot and the coffer—
And a gleam of old grace lights the sad, shrunken face
As she turns to the food that we offer,
And give him the larger share—wolfishly thrust
To his lips ere her hunger has broken a crust.

Then, their rags closer bound their chill frames around;
They pass on the way of the vagrant;
For wretches so mean in good homes to be seen
Would be a transgression most fragrant;
But the woman half turns, with the wave of the hand,
And a sad, thankful look that is simple and grand.

And I look through the panes as the brief day wanes,
And the shadows of night are blending,
And watch through the snow, on the highway below,
The two figures slowly wending;
A woman, whose love can all wretchedness span
And the coarse, shattered wreck, of what once was a man.

The Power of Kindness.

Quiet enough is the quaint old town of Lamborough. Why all this bustle to-day? Along the hedge-bound roads which lead to it, carts, chaises, vehicles of every description are jogging along, filled with countrymen; and here and there the scarlet cloak or straw bonnet of some female, occupying a chair, placed somewhat unsteadily behind them, contrasts gayly with the dark coats or gray smock frocks of the front row. From every cottage of the suburbs some individuals join the stream, which rolls on increasing through the streets till it reaches the castle. The ancient moat teems with idlers, and the hill opposite, usually the quiet domain of a score or two of peaceful sheep, partakes of the surrounding agitation.

The voice of the multitude which surrounds the court-house sounds like the murmur of the sea, till suddenly it is raised to a sort of shout. John West, the terror of the surrounding country, the sheep-stealer and burglar, has been found guilty.

"What is the sentence?" is asked by a hundred voices.

The answer is: "Transportation for life."

But there was one standing aloof on the hill, whose inquiring eyes wandered over the crowd with indescribable anguish, whose pallid cheek grew more and more ghastly at every denunciation of the culprit, and who, when at last the sentence was pronounced, fell insensible upon the green sward. It was the burglar's son.

When the boy recovered from his swoon, it was late in the afternoon; he was alone. The faintest tinkling of the sheep-bell had replaced the sound of the human chorus of expectation, and dread, and jesting; all was peaceful; he could not understand why he lay there, feeling so weak and sick. He raised himself tremulously and looked around; the turf was cut and spoilt by the tramping of many feet. All his life of the last few months floated before his memory; his residence in his father's hovel with ruffianly comrades; the desperate schemes he had heard as he pretended to sleep on his lowly bed; their expeditions at night, masked and armed; their hasty returns; the news of his father's capture; his own removal to the house of some female in the town; the court, the trial, the condemnation.

The father had been a harsh and cruel parent, but he had not positively illused the boy. Of the great and merciful Father of the fatherless, the child knew nothing. He deemed himself alone in the world. Yet grief was not his pervading feeling, nor the shame of being known as the son of a transport. It was revenge that burned within him. He thought of the crowd which had come to feast upon his father's agony; he longed to tear them to pieces; and he plucked a handful of grass upon which he lent. Oh, that he were a man! that he could punish them all—all—the spectators first, the constables, the judge, the jury, the witnesses—one of them especially, a clergyman named Leyton, who had given his evidence more positively, mors clearly than all the others. Oh, that he could do that man some injury—but for him, his father would not have been identified and convicted.

Suddenly a thought occured to him—his eyes sparkled with fierce delight.

"I know where he lives," he said to himself; "he has the farm and parsonage of Millwood. I will go there at once—it is almost dark already. I will do as I once heard father say he did to the squire. Yes, yes, he shall burn for it; he shall get no more fathers transported."

To procure a box of matches was an easy task, and that was all the preparation the boy made.

The autumn was far advanced. A cold wind was beginning to moan among the almost leafless trees, and George West's teeth chattered, and his ill-clad limbs grew numb, as he walked along the fields leading to Millwood.

"Lucky it's a dark night. This fine wind will fan the flames nicely," he repeated to himself.

The clock was striking nine, but all was quiet as midnight. Not a soul stirrling—not a light in the parsonage windows, that he could see. He dared not open the gate, lest the click of the latch should betray him; so he softly climbed over; but scarcely had he dropped on the other side of the wall, before the loud barking of a dog startled him. He cowered down behind the hay-rick scarcely daring to breathe; expecting each instant that the dog would spring upon him. It was some time before the boy dared to stir; and, as his courage cooled, his thirst for revenge somewhat subsided also, till he almost determined to return to Lamborough; but he was too tired, too cold, too hungry—besides, the woman would beat him for staying out so late. What could he do? where should he go? and as the sense of his lonely and forlorn condition returned, so did also the affectionate remembrance of his father, his hatred of his accursers, his desire to satisfy his vengeance; and, once more courageous through anger, he rose, took the box from his pocket and boldly drew one of them across the sand-paper. It flamed; he stuck it hastily in the stack against which he rested—it only flickered a little, and went out. In great trepidation young West once more grasped the whole of the remaining matches in his hand and ignited them, but at the same instant the dog barked. He hears the gate open, a step is close to him, the matches are extinguished, and the lad makes a desperate effort to escape—but a strong hand was laid upon his shoulder, and a deep, calm voice inquired—

"What can have urged you to such a crime?"

Then calling loudly, the gentleman, without relinquishing his hold, soon obtained the help of some farming men, who commenced a search with their lanterns all about the farm. Of course they found no accomplices—nothing at all but the handful of half-consumed matches the lad had dropped; and he all the time stood trembling, and occasionally struggling, beneath the firm but not rough grasp of the master who held him.

At last the men were to return to the house; and thither, by a different path, was George led; they entered a small, poorly furnished room. The walls were covered with books, as the bright flame of the fire revealed to the anxious gaze of the little culprit. The clergyman lit a lamp and surveyed his prisoner attentively. The lad's eyes were fixed on the ground, while Mr. Leyton's wandered from his pale, pinched features, to his scanty, ragged attire, through the tatters of which he could discern the thin limbs quivering from cold or fear; and when, at last impelled by curiosity at the long silence George looked up, there was something so sadly compassionate in the stranger's gentle look, that the boy could scarcely believe that he was really the man whose evidence had mainly contributed to transport his father. At the trial he had been unable to see his face, and nothing so kind had ever gazed upon him. His proud, bad feelings were already melting.

"You look half starved," said Mr. Leyton. "Draw near the fire. You can sit down on that stool while I question you; and mind you answer me the truth. I am not a magistrate, but of course can easily hand you over to justice if you will not allow me to benefit you in my own way."

George still stood twisting his ragged cap in his trembling fingers, and with so much emotion depicted in his face, that the good clergyman resumed, in still more soothing accents:

"I have no wish to do you anything but good, my poor boy. Look up at me, and see if you cannot trust me. You need not be thus frightened. I only desire to hear the tale of misery your appearance indicates, to relieve it, if I can."

Here the young culprit's heart smote him. Was this the man whose house he had tried to burn? On whom he had wished to bring ruin, and perhaps death? Was it a snare spread for him to lead to confession? But when he looked on that grave, compassionate countenance, he felt that it was not.

"Come, my lad, tell me all."

George had for years heard little but oaths, and curses, and ribald jests, or the thieves' jargon of his father's associates, and had been constantly cuffed and punished; but the better part of his nature was not extinguished; and at those words from the mouth of his enemy, he dropped on his knees, and clasping his hands, tried to speak, but could only sob. He had not wept before during that day of anguish; and now his tears gushed forth so freely, his grief was so passionate, as he half knelt, half rested on the floor, that the good questioner saw that sorrow must have its course ere calm could be restored.

The young penitent still wept, when a knock was heard at the door, and a lady entered. It was the clergyman's wife; he kissed her as she asked how he had succeeded with the wicked man in the jail.

"He told me," replied Mr. Leyton, "that he had a son, whose fate tormented him more than his punishment. Indeed, his mind was so distracted respecting the youth that he was scarcely able to understand my exhortations. He entreated me, with agonizing energy, to save his son from such a life as he had led, and gave me the address of a woman in whose house he lodged. I was, however, unable to find the boy, in spite of many earnest inquiries."

"Did you hear his name?" asked the wife.

"George West," was the reply.

At the mention of his name, the boy ceased to sob. Breatless he heard the account of his father's last request; of the benevolent clergyman's wish to fulfill it. He started up, ran toward the door, and endeavored to open it. Mr. Leyton calmly restrained him.

"You must not escape," he said.

"I cannot stop here. I cannot bear to look at you. Let me go!" The lad said this wildly, and shook himself away.

"Why, I intend you nothing but kindness."

A new flood of tears gushed forth, and George West said, between his sobs:

"Whilst you were searching for me to help me, I was trying to burn you in your house. I cannot bear it." He sunk on his knees, and covered his face with both hands.

There was a long silence; for Mr. and Mrs. Leyton were as much moved as the boy who was bowed down with shame and penitence, to which hitherto he had been a stranger.

At last the clergyman asked: "What could have induced you to commit such a crime?"

"Rising suddenly in the excitement of remorse, gratitude, and many other feelings new to him, he hesitated for a moment, and then told his story. He related his trials, his sins, his sorrows, his supposed wrongs, his burning anger at the terrible fate of his only parent, and his rage at the exultation of the crowd; his desolation on recovering from his swoon; his thirst for vengeance; the attempt to satisfy it. He spoke with untaught, child like simplicity, without attempting to suppress the emotions which successively overcame him.

When he ceased, the lady hastened to the crouching boy, and soothed him with gentle words. The very tones of her voice were new to him. They pierced his heart more acutely than the fiercest of the upbraidings and denunciations of his old companions. He looked on his merciful benefactors with bewildered tenderness. He kissed Mrs. Leyton's hand then gently laid on his shoulder. He gazed about like one in a dream who dreaded to wake. He became faint and staggered. He was laid gently on a sofa, and Mr. and Mrs. Leyton left him.

Food was shortly administered to him; and after a time, when his senses had become sufficiently collected, Mr. Leyton returned to the study, and explained holy and beautiful things, which were new to the neglected boy, of the great yet loving Father; of Him who loved the poor, forlorn wretch equally with the richest, and noblest, and happiest, of the force and efficacy of the sweet beatitude, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."

I heard this story from Mr. Leyton during a visit to him in May. George West was then head-ploughman to a neighboring farmer—one of the cleanest, best behaved, and most respected laborers in the parish.

It is the way of attaining to heaven that makes profane scorners so willing to let go the expectation of it. It is not the articles of the creed, but the duty to God and their neighbor, that is such an inconsistent, incredible legend.

The churches of New York cost $3,000,000 a year, the amusements $7,000,000 and the city government $13,000,000, or $3,000,000 more than it costs to save and entertain the citizens.

Faithful Mothers.

How much there is sometimes in a single word. One word can often move the heart deeper than the whole of an eloquent sermon.

Speak the word "Household," or "Fireside," or "Home," to one who is wandering friendless, homeless, and, perhaps, in a strange land, and how quickly the tears will start, the bosom heave and the lips quiver. Memory goes back with lightning speed to the days of childhood, when the loved household gathered an unbroken band around the fireside in the dear old home. The happy voices that are scattered far away, or hushed in the silent dormitory of the dead, are plainly heard by memory's ear, and above the rest sounds the loving mother's voice, as with one of the sweet songs of Zion she sang her weary child to sleep.

As memory brings up so faithfully scenes of the old home, and just as faithfully his life since he left that home, how an innocent child on his mother's lap listening to the old Bible stories that are ever new.

The stories float in his memory and thoughts of them and his mother cause the tears to roll down his cheeks. Oh, the memory of a loving, faithful mother can soften the hardest heart! How her advice, precepts and love can help us even when she has long been mouldering in the grave.

When we think of home, how our thoughts go back to the place where mother was, and when we look forward to the beautiful home beyond the river, faith and imagination see mother there.

Oh mothers of the youth of our country, do you realize what a power for good is in your hands if you will only use it? Are you so living before your children, so training them that when they go out into the world away from you, or you are taken from them, their memories of you will be as a guilding star to keep them on the right path? Do you realize that God has placed the children with you to take care for Him? Do you stop to think that the way in which mothers train their children now will influence the whole nation, aye, the whole world, in years to come? If you do, why do you leave the little one of tender years out in the streets, away from under your own eye and ear, to learn more of evil in one hour than you can root up in a lifetime? How are you training your sons that in time to come are to fill offices all over the land? Are you doing your best to have them grow up honest, truthful men? Are you training your daughters to be true women, worthy to become the wives and mothers of the nation? Oh, women, take care of the precious talent God has given you; and one way to make the best of it is to make your home the most pleasant spot on earth. Gather your household around a cheerful fireside, when the cold wintry winds of unkindness and neglect are not allowed to come, but from which the members will carry a warm glow all their lives.—The Household.

Singeing Sparse Hair.

"Stop right in here and I'll tell you all about the new process for the prevention of baldness," said a well known Griswold avenue barber, as he led the way to a room adjoining his shop.

"This process," he proceeded to say, "is entirely new in Detroit. I found it out in this way: A friend of mine went to Paris a short time ago, and at the time of his departure his hair was very thin and continually falling out. On his return the appearance of his head was entirely changed, being covered with a growth of hair ever so much more luxurious and thick than on his departure. On inquiring the reason for this change I was informed that he had his hair singed. Here was a practical illustration of the good effects following this new method, so I made up my mind to adopt it, and have done so very successfully.

"How is it done? Well, I just take a lighted taper and pass the flame over the tips of a man's hair which is at all thin or had a tendency to fall out; that is all. You see, every hair is hollow, and more or less of the fluid necessary for its growth escapes. When the top of the hair is singed the aperture is closed and the strengthening fluid retained."

"Will not the same means be employed to encourage the growth of hair on the bald upper lips of some of our youth?" was asked.

"Exactly. You see my mustache? It is thicker on one side than on the other. That is caused by my smoking my cigars just a little short, and they singe my mustache on one side and make it thick there. This goes to prove that singeing is beneficial. I have no doubt that before long you will see in front of all the barber shops of this city signs marked "Singeing done here.'"—Detroit Times.

Feats of Marksmanship Never Equaled by Carver or Bogardus.

From the Pittsburg Post.

Rev. W. L. McGrew, a young Methodist minister of Somerset county, was in Pittsburg this week on a visit to friends. He was the guest of Rev. Riley, of the South side. On Thursday evening he went to Finleyville, Washington county, on a visit. Rev. McGrew is well known in Western Pennsylyania. He is a citizen of West Elizabeth, in this county. He has been a member of the Methodist ministery for probably twelve or fifteen years, maybe longer. It is not of his ability as a minister, but of his marvelous skill in shooting that this brief article will treat. Many of his acquaintances do know that he is probably the finest marksman in American, not excepting Carver and Bogardus. From boyhood he has been passionately fond of fire arms, and the expertness, celerity and accuracy with which he can handle a reyolver, shotgun or rifle, entitle them to rank in their use without a known equal. He has never sought to make any display of his acquirements in this respect, because he has not coveted notoriety. Target shooting has been pursued as a pleasant passtime in his hours of recreation, and with no thought or desire of ever being brought to public notice by it. But the feats which he accomplishes with ease are so incredible that the Post is certain he will pardon its relation of some of them purely as a matter of interest to its readers.

Bogardus and Carver have never accomplished anything with shotgun or rifle which Rev. McGrew has not been able to duplicate. But he can teach them feats which, whether they can execute them or not, they have never attempted. One of these is the breaking with a repeating rifle of two ordinary glass goblets thrown into the air before either falls to the ground. He cuts one of the goblets in twain at the stem, lowers his rifle to his hip to throw out the empty shell and reload, and then breaks the globe of the other. He admits his inability to break both at the stems, but is serene under the knowledge that he has never heard of any one able to duplicate even this feat.

Another thing he does is to shoot through the mouth of a pop bottle thrown up in the air and knock the bottom out. The bottle is thrown so that every revolution the mouth is presented to him. He shoots with a rifle through the mouth and knocks the bottom out. It takes a quick eye, steady nerves and accurate judgement, but Rev. McGrew does it.

These feats, he says, are comparatively easy of accomplishment. One that is still more difficult is to shoot with a repeating rifle two glass balls thrown in opposite directions from a trap. At the county fair last fall at Somerset he was invited to give a public exhibition of his skill. He consented to do so, provided, the event should not be surrounded with any circumstances that would detract from the dignity of his calling. On that occasion he first broke thirty single balls thrown from a trap, hitting every one at the first fire. Then he tried his hand on fifteen double balls and broke every pair. Out of the sixty balls he did not miss one. All this was done with a rifle. Ex-Governor Hoyt was a witness of the exhibition, and pronounced it the most phenomenal display of marksmanship he had ever seen.

These are only a few illustrations of the capacity of Rev. McGrew in this line. His feats with revolver and shotgun are as wonderful as those with the rifle.

Sleeplessness.

In order to avoid sleeplessness keep yourself free, as far as possible, from that fatal enemy of sleep, indigestion, by the strict adherence to those laws of diet which in these days of running after knowledge must be familiar to all of you. Take care that you abstain from those unhealthy and sleep-driving heavy suppers; though there can be no harm in having a light meal of some plainly-cooked and nutritious food some little time before bedtime; in fact, in many cases of wakefulness in debilitated or even weakly persons, such a meal rather predisposes to sleep. Whatever is taken at the time should be easy of digestion and not likely in any way to irritate the stomach, and should be taken in a moderate quantity. Exercise, and exercise in the open air, is absolutely necessary for the preservation of healthy sleep, and among the women of our poorer classes, more especially those living in our towns, that is not thought of as it should be. If care and worry prevent sleep, I should advise some gentle occupation of the mind prior to retiring to rest—a game of chess, cards or backgammon, an hour's social conversation, or even a little reading, when actually in bed, provided that it is nothing very exciting. A warm bath, again, is an excellent excitant of sleep, ut must not be indulged in too often.

HUMOROUS.

It is the feeblest mustache, as well as the sickliest child, that get's the most fondlings.

A correspondent inquires if the opera "L'Elisir d' Amore" means "The Loves of Eliza!"

'Of what did you say they convicted the doctor?' 'Well, I don't know exactly, but I suppose it was purgery.'

It is said that an Iowa woman drank three quarts of cider in three minutes. After that she was quite be cider herself.

'It seems to me,' moaned Algernon as he flew toward the front gate with the old man behind him, 'that there are more than three feet in a yard.'

'Yes,' said Fogg, to the author of an unknown new work, 'your book is perfect in its way. One feels, while reading it, as if he were in some royal court.' 'Does he?' asked the author, with eagerness. 'Yes,' said Fogg; 'there are so many sleepy pages in it, you know.'

Willie had been forbidden to ask for dessert. The other day they forgot to serve him, and as Willie is very obedient, he remained silent, although much affected. 'Josephine,' said the father, 'pass me a plate.' 'Won't you have mine, papa?' said Willie; 'It is very clean.'

A full-bearded grandfather recently had his beard shaved off, showing a clean face for the first time for a number of years. At the dinner table his three year old grand-daughter noticed it, gazed along with wondering eyes, and finally ejaculated: 'Grandfather, whose head you got on.'

They all Laughed.

A man woo seemed to be all legs and at least seven feet long halted a policeman on Woodward avenue the other day and excitedly began: 'I was turning the corner up there about ten minutes ago when I fell down.' 'Yes—fell down,' repeated the officer. 'Has any one a right to insult me for falling down?' 'No sir.' 'Well, they did insult me—a full dozen of them. When I got up one fellow was hanging to a lamp post and laughing as if he would die, and another was—' 'Yes—I see—ha! ha! ha! They couldn't help it—ho! ho! ho! it's the funniest sight in the world!' 'And you, to, durn your buttons—you are laughihg because I sprawled on the pavement!' 'Y-yes—can't help it—ho! ho! ho! 'You a public officer, add insult to injury, do you?' 'No—no, that—but—ha ha ha I can imagine just how you walloped that icy spot!

It's too funny for—ha ha ha!' 'Sir, I'll report you!' 'Yes I know, but—ho ho ho!' 'I'll have you dismissed!, 'I know it—of course—but o-o-oh ho ho ho!' The long legged man made a rush for the City Hall and entered the office of the Chief of Police just as that gentleman was laughing at a remark made by a visitor. 'And you heard of it and are cracking, too!' yelled the long-legged man, with great indignation, and he turned and walked out with his face as red as a toy wagon and his legs as stiff as crowbars.

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

THE Morrison tariff bill has been defeated by 4 votes, the ballot standing 159 yeas against 155 nays. This settles the tariff question which has been pending for over five months, for the present and the work of this congress is ended as far as the bill is concerned.

But will trade matters take on a more favorable aspect now? According to the arguments of high protectionists, who blamed this tariff agitation for the general stagnation in business, things ought to boom now without any further delay.

HON. BUTLER B. STRANG, a prominent republican of Tioga county, Pennsylvania, committed suicide by discharging the contents of a revolver into his head, in the presence of his wife and son, on Saturday morning.

He had been in feeble health for a long time and the act is ascribed to the misery and suffering caused by his chronic ailment.

THE following is given as the probable strength of republican candidates for President: Arthur, 318; Blaine, 322; Edmunds, 74; Logan, 55; Sherman, 24; Hawley, 12; Gresham, 6; unknown, 12. Number of delegates, 820. Necessary to a choice, 411.

SOME of the Greenback papers are bringing Thomas A. Armstrong, the editor of the Pittsburg Labor Tribune forward for president on the ticket of that party. He was the candidate of that party for governor in 1882.

GEN. Grant and son are heavy losers by the failure of the banking firm of Grant & Ward in New York. The ex-president, as a general thing, has the sympathy of the country in his financial affliction.

NEW York city had a meeting of various manufacturers to form a union for tariff revision, to be known as the Manufacturers, Reform League. They passed the following resolutions:

That correspondence be opened with other manufacturing centres, inviting their co-operation in this and other states to memorialize congress for the adoption of articles 1 and 2 as guiding principles of tariff reform; to send an address to the republican and democratic national conventions and to the delegates elected thereto; to petition the legislature to request our senators and representatives in congress to vote for means of relief to the industries of the city and state; to organize the congressional districts with a view of electing representatives who are in favor of these measures of relief; to appoint an executive committee to whom these measures are to be intrusted for execution and to empower them to call a mass meeting if they deem it essential to the furtherance of this case.

Bold Robbery.

Every man in the United States who wears clothes and pays for them should read this:

The New York Times publishes a comparison of the difference in the prices in New York and London of men's clothing, which no fairminded reader can consider without acknowledging the injustice of the outrageous system that makes such a difference possible.

For istance, a broadcloth dress suit which costs $50 in New York costs only $22 in London.

A heavy bnsiness suit which costs $30 in New York costs but $13 in London.

A spring serge overcoat which costs $20 in New York costs but $8.50 in London.

A winter beaver overcoat which costs $35 in New York costs but $14.50 in London.

A silk hat which costs $5 in New York costs only $3 in London.

These articles all together cost in New York $140. In London they cost but $61. The man who buys these clothes, therefore, in New York pays $79 more for them than he could buy them for in London.

What causes this difference in the prices of the two cities?

Our tariff.

No one will dispute that, with the tariff removed, the same goods could be purchased as cheaply in New York as in London, at least as cheaply plus the freight rate between the two cities.

The man who pays, therefore, $140 for clothes in New York really buys $61 worth of clothes, on which he pays $79 taxes.

And where do these taxes go?

If the goods are manufactured in this country, not one cent reaches the Treasury. It is simply $79 taken by law from the man who buys $61 worth of clothes and given to the man who grows wool and the man who makes cloth.

If the goods are manufactured abroad, $79 goes to a treasury that does not need it and which can raise all the revenue it requires on whiskey, tobacco and articles of luxury.

In either case the purchaser of the clothes gets absolutely nothing for the $79 of the $140 which he spends.

If on buying the clothes he had to pay $61 to the clothier, and $79 directly to a tax collector, how long would he stand such extortion.

In result there is not a particle of difference between that system and the present tariff system, according to which he is thus unecessarily and exorbitantly taxed, not only his clothing but on nearly every other necessity of life.

How long will the people of a country which claims to be free submit to this legalized robbery, which those who uphold it, and grow fat upon it, are pleased to call a "protective" tariff?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14th, 1884.

It seems after all that the old patriarch Edmunds is no more proof against the political scandal-mongers than any other of the Presidential candidates. In the tilt between him and the erratic Phelps of New Jersey, the latter came out a good ways ahead, and left the incorruptible judge with any quantity of railroad stock on hand, representing roads that had been cutting no small in the body oyer which he now presides. The man who can popularize himself enough to be talked about for the Presidency nowadays, is not the man to escape an overhauling of record, and Mr. Edmunds can rest assured that an accurate as well as a complete history of his political career, with all of its side issues and financial switch-offs, will be promptly furnished. And in this connection it would hardly be out of place to say that the elements of opposition to Arthur and Blaine and the other candidates of the Grand Old Party, who are distinctively known as machine politicians, are proposing to concetrate upon Edmunds—the noblest machinist of the whole pack of them!

The volume of the tenth census report which pertains to agriculture, for which there has been an unprecedented demand, is delayed because the maps showing the range of cultivation of the several crops have not been engraved! This excuse for a four years' delay of this important work is a most ample and plausible one, because no farmer would ever think of prosecuting any branch of husbandry without a reference to these maps, which are the refinement of the closest analysis of scientific humbuggery. The yellow and the blue and the green and the red and the purple spots on the map show to the granger those meteorological conditions under which alone he must sow and reap and plow and hoe, and his scientific mind will grasp at once the simple aphorisms that got the better of LeDuc, though they fail to confound the present head of the Agricultural Bureau, who is versed in both Hebrew and Greek. PHONO.

Arrangements for Spectators at Chicago.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Senator Sabin having received numerous inquiries regarding the manner of securing tickets of admission to the convention says: "The members of the national committee from each state and territory will have charge of the tickets for his state or territory, and will distribute them to the delegates according to their numbers and in just proportion. Thus the delegates from each state and territory will have the distribution of the tickets assigned thereto and they are therefore the proper and only persons to whom the application should be made. Owing to the vast number of weekly newspapers, it has not been found possible to make any provision for them. Ample arrangements will be made for the accommodation of the several press associations and also for as large a number of reporters for the daily newspapers as may be possible."

A Millionaire Cleaves the Air.

DAYTON, O., May 8.—William K. Vanderbilt, the railroad king, passed through here to-day en route foa Cincinati, in a special coach, making the fastest time on record. The train came from Lima to this city, a distance of seventy-four miles, in sixty-six minutes and from here to Hamilton, a distance of thirty-five miles, in thirty-six minutes. The train made the trip from Detroit to Cincinnati, a distance of 263 miles, in five hours and thirty-nine minutes, an average of fifty and seventeenths miles an hour. It is estimated that in some places the train travelled a mile in from forty-eight to fifty-two seconds.

—Our neighbor, Mrs. A. J. Harter, displays a good amount of taste in the horticultural line. Her front yard is adorned by a large round bed of well-arranged and beautiful flower plants.

—C. F. Lindig, Esq., and son Fred have just returned from Harrisburg where they erected a family monument and cemetery lot encloser for Prof. J. H. Kurzenknabe.—Lewisburg Saturday News.

—Have your quarter dollars ready for next week's concert. Do not hold back—it goes for a canse in which everybody ought to take a lively interest. Besides you will receive the worth of your money.

—On Friday evening a heavy shower of rain poured down on us, lasting about half an hour after which the gloomy skies of the week put on a brighter look and the weather has been fair since then.

Could not our Association be induced to render a few proper pieces and thereby help to make the solemn decoration services more impressive ?

—Dr. Lee of Madisonburg, while attending a patient on North street, had his horse tied to a post, when somehow the bridle and hitching strap became entangled and the horse fell to the ground upsetting the buggy at the same time. No serious damages were caused by the incident, except a sore thumb for the doctor.

—From the Reading Times, May 6th: Miss Clara Deininger, a daughter of the late Constantine Deininger, of this city, died at Harrisburg on Sunday evening, aged about 36 years. They are prepared to furnish the best in their line, whether an elaborate monument or a plain headstone, and at prices that can not be undersold by any establishment in this part of the state. 2t

—Mrs. T. R. Stam, (nee Rose Musser) arrived in Millheim from West Union, Iowa, last Thursday evening. It was a pleasant surprise to her parents, brothers and sister, neither of them having expected her at this time. The welcome she received was hearty,and her visit, which will extend over the greater part of the summer, will be made as rosy as loving relations and kind friends can make it.

—McDonald's improved Liver Pills are the most reliable and satisfactory Liver Pills made. Many Doctors buy them by the thousand for use in their daily practice. No higher mark of confidence could be quoted. We do not know any proprietary medicine that stands so high in the estimation of the medical profession as McDonald's improved Liver Pills. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—At the convention of the school directors of this county Prof. D. M. Wolf was unanimously re-elected Superintendent of schools. The action of the convention is commendable in its recognition of the labors of a hard-working and worthy officer who is awake to the responsibilities of his position and has done everthing in his power to elevate the standard of our schools.

—Last week's Bellefonte Republican after using a lot of locals from the famous JOURNAL gives a full account of the programme for Decoration day in Millheim and winds up by recommending the several orators who can be gotten for an occasion of this kind. Its style reminds us of a commercial traveler spreading out his samples before the eyes of a merchant, calling special attention to the best articles. The editor of the Republican is overly concerned about the welfare of our town and we are pleased to note that he takes such great interest in our doings.

—A paying investment.—At this season of the year when your cows fail in milk,your horses become rough in coat, your pigs refuse to thrive, the hens won't lay as many eggs as they should, you will find a package or two of McDonald's Celebrated Tonic and Blood Purifying Horse and Cattle Powders judiciously administered an investment that will pay big dividends. They are positively the best Horse and Cattle Powders made. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. What other manufacturer dare make this offer. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Rev. J. A. Bright, of this city,and Grand Champlain of the I. O. O. F. of Kansas, returned on last Monday from Clay Centre, where he had been invited by the order at that place, to dedicate a burial ground to the use of Odd Fellows, on last Sunday. He addressed an audience of several thousand at the burial ground, and by special request, appeared before a large and appreciative audience in the Opera House in the afternoon. Bro. Bright comes back to us, more enthusiastic than ever in the work of Odd Fellowship.—Ellsworth, (Kansas) Reporter.

GREATEST TREAT EVER OFFERED TO THE PEOPLE OF MILLHEIM AND VICINITY.—A grand entertainment of sacred and select music for the benefit of the Sunday schools of Millheim will be given by the Millheim Musical Association in the Methodist church, on Saturday evening, May 24th, 1884. The programme will consist of nothing but the choicest selections, embracing Solos, Duets, Trios, Quartets,Choruses interspersed by a few instrumental pieces of an high order. The exercises will be conducted by Prof. H. J. Kurzenknabe,assisted by his twin brothers, John E. and George J. Kurzenknabe, on Contra Bass and Piano. The entertainment will commence at 8 o'clock, sharp. Tickets can be procured of the members of the Association, reserved seats at P. H. Musser's Jewelry Store.

—From last week's Bellefonte Watchman: The contracts for the grading and masonry of the branch road from this place to Lemont were announced on Saturday last,as follows: Beginning at Bellefonte the first two miles was let to Charles McAfferty, of this place, the next three miles to Mr. Good, of Lock Haven, the next two miles to Messrs. Jackman and Batchelor,of Lock Haven, the next two to Messrs. Shipman & Walls, of Sunbury and Lewisburg respectively, and the remaining mile to Mr. Lambert Vandyke.

Almost half of Mr. McAfferty's contract is already completed. The other contractors have been in town arranging to go to work at once, and it is calculated that this road bed will be ready for the ties by the first of October.

There is nothing new in regard to the Beech Creek and Bellefonte. The failing of the Reading rail-road to sign the contract to take charge of and run it when completed will delay somewhat its construction. It is not dead, however. The engineers are now in Liberty township completing the final location, and in a few days application will be made for juries to assess the damages to properties along ths route, where the cost of the right of way could not be amicably arranged. Workmen along the line have been stopped for the present. The Buffalo Run road will not be ironed until some more definite arrangement is made to complete the Beech Creek and Bellefonte.

The extension of the L. C. & T. road from Spring Mills to Lemont is being pushed rapidly along and in a few days cars will be running up to Centre Hall.

—In the Shamokin Herald of the 8th inst., we find the following article which we give below for the benefit of Prof. W. T. Meyer's numerous friends and admirers in and around his home. We are glad to note that Prof. Meyer is worthily honored and appreciated in his new field of labor as he fully deserves it and heartily add our congratulations to the esteem in which he is held by his pupils and co-laborers:

The Philharmonic—Prof. Meyer Surprised.

The established success and continued prosperity of the Philharmonic Society of Shamokin should be hailed with delight by every true lover of music. Not only has it tended to bring out and develop a wonderful amount of musical talent that had been lying dormant for years,but that it has been the means of elevating the standard of music in Shamokin must be apparent to every one attending its weekly meetings, which are very profitable, interesting and entertaining. Much of this is due to the professional skill and untiring efforts of Prof. W. T. Meyer,who gives his valuable services gratituously. Recognizing this fact and anxious to show their appreciation, the Society took advantane of the Professor's absence from town last week and decided to get up a testimoniol, fixing Tuesday of this week for the presentation. There was a large turnout of the Society on that evening and during the intermission a kind of "love feast" was indulged in. Speeches were made by Rev. T. J. Hacker, President R. T. Owen and others, in which the Society was congratulated on its progress and attainments. Finally Rev. Hacker again arose to say that all the speakers had forgotten to mention their leader, and in one of his happiest efforts referred to Prof. Meyer's nobleness of character, his unselfish devotion to the interests of the society,and closed by presenting to him on behalf of the society a handsome gold watch. To say that the professor was dumfounded, is putting it mildly, but notwithstanding the genuine surprise, he managed to accept it in a graceful little speech. The watch is an Elgin movement, heavily cased, and inscribed on the inside: "Presented to W. T. Meyer by the Shamokin Philharmonic Society, May 6, 1894."

COBURN BRIEFS.

House cleaning everywhere in order.

Rev. Yearick preached an able sermon to a large congregation in the Evangelical church last Sunday.

Mr. Barker of the refreshment stand appears to be busy.

Moyer and Evert have disposed of their match team to George Weaver of Brush Valley.

A great deal of lumber is being shipped from this point.

The carpenters have commenced work on Mr. Seriff's new house.

W. H. Kreamer has added his name to the list of drummers.

Mr. Grenninger is our boss fisher. He caught an eel and an old tin can—all in one night and with one line.

C. Dinges makes regular trips to Centre Hall to see the folks up that way.

Daniel Eisenhuth is hauling timber for a new barn. Z.

PENN HALL SHAVINGS.

We notice a reward is offered by Mr. Musser for the recovery of his saddle, which was stolen some time ago.

Boys, be more careful the next time you drive in a light rig—don't ruin a heavy wagon by running into it.

They had quite an excitement at Spring Mills the other night but—"Let sauce for the goose be sauce for the gander."

J. W. Bartges has bought himself a fine horse. They say, he is a daisy.

The other evening while the boys were playing "scrub" they came very near causing a sad accident. As one of them was in the act of batting,Freddy Heckman walked by and was struck on the breast by the batter. The blow might have proved serious, but we are glad to report that he is able to be about. More care ought to be taken by the players.

There was quite a circus in town on Saturday afternoon. Two of our sports got too much "How come ye so" and drove their horse around at a fearful gate. But oh! the axle broke and the boys had the choice of walking or finding some other means of transportation. They disposed of the matter in this way: The one went on horse back, the other on the axle of the buggy at the rate of 2.15. The constable ought to take such men in hands and deal with them according to law. Shame on you, to treat a poor brute in such a cruel way.

JACK PLANE.

Madisonburg Items.

Mrs. Levi Long purchased a new buggy from Mr. Burry.

Mr. Jacob Long of Gregg township lost a very valuable horse last Thursday night. The animal died of lung fever.

The Union cemetery needs fixing up for the coming Decoration day. Union men, go to work.

Andrew Ocker purchased Geo. Reber's interest in the lumber job in Little Sugarvalley.

Miles township will furnish four candidates for county offices, two for sheriff, one for treasurer, and one for commissioner. All Democrats, of course.

Daniel Roush is giving the interior of his house a coat of paint.

Miss Rockey of Zion is visiting at Daniel and Benjamin Roush's.

Miss Ida Ocker returned home on Saturday. She is on the sick list.

Geo. K., the champion croquet player—L. W., commander of the game.

Miss Esta Shafer has gone to Jacksonville to visit her friends at that place.

J. H. W. Reber will move to Millheim this week.

SHIN BONE.

—Now that the sudden and violent changes of the weather occur every twenty four hours, almost everyone has a troublesome cold, which, if neglected may produce results that will trouble you for the remainder of your life. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is especially deserving praise in this class of complaints. It never fails! It never disappoints! Instructions for treatment of croup and whooping cough also accompany each bottle. Every family especially where there is children should have a bottle. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

Miscellaneous.

A single cattle ranch in Texas, at the head of the Red River, is said to contain nearly 25,000 acres more than the entire State of Rhode Island contains in territory.

The statement of the State Treasurer for April shows that the total amount in the general fund is $1,456,844,13, exclusive of money appropriated to the sinking fund. The amount mentioned is deposited in different banks in the State.

The telegraph companies, at points where they complete, have concluded to reduce their rates to nearly all points in the West and Southwest to one cent per word, on all messages of fifteen words or more. Competition is doing this. Where no competition exists the old rates will prevail.

The Postoffice Department has conferred authority on postmasters not possessed before to correct misdirected letters, where possible, and forward them, instead as has been the custom, of sending them to the dead letter office. This is certainly a commendable step.

The Grand Army is taking steps to take all the veterans in the State from almshouses, and place them in a home where they can be cared for. It is a disgrace that a soldier, who risked his life in defence of his country, should be allowed to become a pauper.

MARRIED.

On the 4th inst., at the Lutheran parsonage, Aaronsburg, Mr. J. Bower of Haines township and Miss Sallie Miller of Mifflinburg, Pa.

Our new Spring Stock

is now in and we kindly invite all to come and see us. We mean to be the most extensive dealers in this end of the county within this year and expect to merit our trade by treating them as we would have them treat us. We are constantly adding to our large stock and anything we do not have we will get on short notice. For the next ten days we will put on our Store Porch the best bargains ever offered in this section. Come and see them.

Very truly your friends,

DINGES, VONADA & CO.

THE CRAZIEST CRAZE.

"Who is that young man ?"

"The one leaning against the show case ?"

"Yes the same."

"He looks like a dude or a fashionable loafer, but he is really a detectiye, placed here to watch the ladies."

"To prevent stealing ?"

"Oh, no ; the ladies who visit our establishment do not steal. They speculate. They carry small scissors with them and snip pieces out of the curtains, draperies and even each other's cloaks and dresses. They cannot help it. The crazy quilt rage has become a maniac, and now that the storekeeper will no longer give samples, and they have begged all the neckties and pieces from their friends, they just appropriate a patch from everything they see. I know a dozen ladies who have elegant garments ruined by a piece cut out. One lady wore a blue velvet brocade suit to church, and when she got home one of the tails of her basque coat was gone. She thought some evil-minded person had done it to distress her, but a few days after she discovered the piece in the block of a crazy quilt."

The gentleman was one of the proprietors of a large and elegantly appointed establishment on Woodward avenue. and while he talked he watched a beautiful girl who lingered near the superb plush drapery of one of the portieres. The young man leaning against the show case also watched her in a sleepy, indifferent way, but ready to spring and stop her hand if he saw a suspicious movement.

"But," said the representative of the press, "these are ladies of position and wealth. They can buy all the pieces they want for a crazy quilt."

"Ah ! that's all you know about it. There is not a bit of pleasure to them in what they call commercial patchwork. It is like smuggling. There must be a spice of adventure in it, and there is. They beg all the old Knight Templar badges, menus or mottoes printed on ribbon, bookmarks, neckties —why, a bashful man is actually afraid to call on a lady, she demands so much of his wardrobe—and odds and ends obtained by the most hazardous proceeding.

"I have no doubt a pocket-book filled with money would be no temptation to those ladies, but an old-gold satin lining in a man's coat sleeves will be cut out and appropriated without a struggle. 'Tis true,'tis pity, pity 'tis, 'tis true," and the disgusted proprietor reached into his coat pockets after a handkerchief. It was gone, and so were the pockets. They had been quietly abstracted while he was explaining the modua operandi of the crazy quilt business, and as they were blue satin they no doubt form a harmonious discord by this time in a demented counterpane.

Well. D'ye Accept.

When Archbishop Moore died, Manners Sutton was Bishop of Norwich and also Dean of Windsor. He was at that moment residing at his deanery, and was entertaining a party of friends at dinner. In the middle of dinner the butler came up to him with an excited face.

"Beg pardon, my lord, a gentleman wishes to see your lordship directly,but he won't give me his name."

"Nonsense !" said the Bishop. "I can't come now, of course."

"The gentleman says it is very important—very important, indeed, my lord—or he wouldn't disturb you."

"Well," said the Bishop, somewhat crossly, "ask him to wait a few minutes till I have finished my dinner."

"Beg pardon, my lord," said the butler, persistently, and with some confidence, "but you had better see the gentleman directly."

The Bishop, amazed at the man's coolness,made an apology to his guests, and went into the next room, where he was still more amazed to find King George III, who as usual, was breathless and rapid.

"How d'ye do my lord ?—how d'ye do ?—eh—eh ? Just came to tell you Archbishop of Canterbury is dead—died this morning—want you to be new Archbishop, you know—new Archbishop. What d'ye say, eh—eh ?"

The Bishop stood dumbfounded, and the King broke in again, "Well,d'ye accept, eh—eh ?"

The Bishop had by this time recovered himself sufficiently to bow gratefully and murmur his thankful acceptance.

"All right," said his Majesty. "Go back—got a party, I know—very glad you accept. Good night—good night." And with that he bustled away.

The fact was that he had anticipated exactly what happened. Mr. Pitt came down to his Majesty next morning to inform him that the Archbishop was dead, and to recommend to his Majesty Bishop Prettyman (Tomlin) for the yacant primacy. The King, who had rather too much of Prettyman at Mrs. Pitt's hands, resolved to be first in the field, and was now able to tell his Prime Minister that he had already appointed the Bishop of Norwich.

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DELAWARE RIVER CHEMICAL WORKS, BAUGH & SONS,

Philadelphia, Feb. 1, 1884.

To Farmers of Pennsylvania :

Gentlemen :—For over twenty-eight years we have manufactured Raw-Bone Phosphates, and our brands have become household words in nearly every section of the country. In many communities the demand for them has increased, while in others the sales have declined, on account of the preference for lower-priced goods. Six years ago, finding that the demand for goods of lower cost had become almost universal, and having peculiar advantages of raw materials and manufacturing facilities, we determined to meet this demand, and introduced a TWENTY-FIVE DOLLAR PHOSPHATE, made by a NEW PROCESS EXCLUSIVELY OUR OWN. The quickness with which this Phosphate sprang into use among intelligent farmers will be shown by the following statement :

Of the $25 Phosphate there were sold

During	1879,	1,287	Tons.
"	1880,	3,957	"
"	1881,	5,147	"
"	1882,	8,288	"
"	1883,	10,128	"

The reports of the action of the $25 Phosphate have been satisfactory in every case from a wide inquiry. We want to be informed upon this point very plainly, as it is our interest to know if the article continues to produce good results. We will thank any farmer, having used the $25 Phosphate with disappointing results, to let us hear from him with full facts.

Yours truly,

BAUGH & SONS.
